

Use Of Lots Is Forbidden Until Re-Zoning Made

Jacob Chase of 1401 Cornell avenue, Berkeley, can use the City Hall garage for garage purposes but he can not use the abutting lots on Twenty-fourth street for storage purposes until they are re-zoned.

This was the information given the applicant at the meeting of the council last evening.

A telegram from Hollis R. Thompson, of the taxation committee of the California League of Municipalities stated that a bill had been introduced in the legislature which would allocate to cities half a cent of the gas tax money, instead of the quarter cent which municipalities have heretofore received.

The report of Police Judge C. A. Odell showed 257 cases handled during the past month and fines to the amount of $1,152 collected. Of this amount $452 was for violations of the motor vehicle act, and the rest was from other sources.

City manager J. A. McVittie reported that there was nothing in the records which would prevent the leasing of a small piece of land on Dock avenue to the Sea scouts.

El Cerrito News

EL CERRITO, Jan. 28.—Speaking before a large audience at the regular Monday luncheon of the local Lions' Club, W. J. Capper of Oakland, in an interesting talk declared that the Townsend old age pension plan would eliminate 60 percent of the crime in America and 90 percent of the expense for charity. It now costs the government thirty-three billion dollars to take care of expenditures that would be largely eliminated by the Townsend plan which would cost the government but eighteen billion, according to Mr. Capper, and a 2 percent tax on gross production would raise the necessary amount to carry out the plan.

Steve Bertone, president of the club, after presiding at the business session turned the meeting over to Carlo Pera, chairman of the day. The Misses Elyce Waldron and Ruby Reed of Oakland furnished the entertainment.

The only absentee was Dr. Jackson. All prior absences having been made up by attendance at Richmond the club still has a 100 percent attendance record.

Special Radio Event Is Put On By Western Auto

In order to better demonstrate the many advantages of "Westernized" radios for home reception, a special radio event is now in progress at the Western Auto Company according to Charles Billmeyer, local manager of the firm. The event features Western Air Patrol radio and Motorola car radios, many of which are being sold at special prices. All Richmond and vicinity are cordially invited to see and hear these new model sets, Billmeyer asserted.

"Westernized" radios are a result of Western Auto's ten years of experience as one of the leading retailers of radios in the West. In this time our radio engineers have been constantly improving Western Air Patrols to overcome reception difficulties peculiar to the West. Much time and money have been spent in perfecting the models now on display at our store during this current radio sale.

"During this event a radio specialist, Ted Palmer, from Western Auto Supply Company headquarters will be in our store and will be glad to explain the features of "Westernized" radios that make for greater distance, finer reception and better tone. They will be glad to show new sets at the store or demonstrate them in the homes of those interested," the Western Auto manager added.

"A new treat in radio listening is reflected by the rapidly increasing popularity of all wave radios," he says.

"This is probably due to the return of the DX or distance-reception fan," he asserts. "Western Air Patrol All-Wave radios offer a new pastime with new thrills without the necessity of special training."

"During this special radio event, Western Air Patrol All-Wave models are being offered at reduced prices," he added.

"In addition to the console and table models of the Western Air Patrol radios, the three new Motorola automobile radios are being included in this preview. The Motorolas being shown are the luxurious Super Power "Twelve Eight" the dependable "Dual-6" and the moderately priced model 31.

In order to afford patrons ample time to take advantage of this sale the local store will remain open until 7:30 each evening.

DELAY ACTION ON EL CERRITO TAX SURVEY

No action was taken by the council of El Cerrito at their meeting Monday night on the proposal of Mayor pro tem J. R. Beck that a survey be made of improvements for taxation purposes as a SERRA project on account of the absence of Mayor Hans M. Nissen.

Beck stated that to make an intelligent assessment for taxation that a reappraisal of property and improvements should be made.

The cost of the proposed project to city would be approximately $300.

Councilman Louis Navallier said the appraisal should be made in order to make assessment fair.

Councilman W. F. Huber said that he thought the City Assessor Fred J. Prosser should have time to do the work himself as he had plenty of time.

On a motion of Councilman W. F. Huber the council instructed City Engineer Hoffman to submit to the SERRA a project of making block books and maps of the city in connection with the State Sanitary Board.

The approximate cost of the work will be about $200, to be divided between the State Sanitary District and the Council.

NO FUNDS FOR COURT

Proposal of Councilman W. F. Huber that the council contribute toward the construction of a tennis court at the park on Polsonett avenue was laid over as the city has no available funds at the present time.

In answer to a communication from the Boy Scout Troop No. 2 of El Cerrito, the council agreed to give their co-operation to a dinner to be held on February 16, at 406A San Pablo avenue to raise funds for the troop.

Harmon had a scalp wound, broken thumb and teeth and split lips.

REPEAL NOTE

GRAFTON, W. Va., UP—Law pleaded not guilty to an attempt to charge because he said he drank nothing but 32 beer.

APPOINTMENTS WILL BE MADE BY GOVERNOR

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 28.—UP—State appointments and reappointments once more moved into the State limelight tonight as Governor Frank Pinley Merriam and his aides turned attention to State business postponed during the first half of the 51st State legislative session.

The governor first must complete the state emergency relief commission and appoint an administrator. Two vacancies are to be filled on the commission. Vacancies also must be filled on the state and game, and boxing commissions, and other state boards.

Governor Merriam said today that he was "very well pleased" with the legislature's attitude toward State problems. He said he would feel it no "discredit" if the legislature proposes substituting revenue and finance plans to his own program. A Democratic bloc in the Assembly indicated today that it would submit an alternate tax program for presentation when the legislature convenes again March 4.

"The governor's tax plan such a patch-work affair that can't possibly pass," said Roddey L. Turner, Democrat, Delahoe.

Turner predicted that the budget as finally passed would exceed the $151,000,000 general fund estimate submitted by Governor Merriam, saying that "drastic economy cannot be effected" at the present.

A total of 2,623 measures were introduced at the session. The covered every phase of State activity and requirement. Many deal with prison improvement programs.

"Some people," Judge Dent-rule can get drunk on almost any thing."

The DAILY WASHINGTON

MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—There is a great deal more to the Administration's $4,600,000,000 omnibus relief bill than is generally realized.

The unprecedented peace-time appropriation is only part of the story.

The measure also contains unprecedented administrative authority under which the President by a stroke of the pen could do the following:

Recast, practically the entire administrative machinery of the Government, abolishing, if he desired, the Interstate Commerce Commission and other important agencies.

Fill, without regard to Civil Service requirements, the thousands of administrative jobs the relief program will create; also fix the salary to go with each post.

In view of the latter it is no wonder, Big Jim Farley is going around with a contented grin on his face.

Things are picking up in the patronage line and it won't be long before the dinner bell will again be sounding for the faithful.

SUPREME COURT SHY

But while Jim Farley is grinning, some of the New Dealers who recently have been edged away from the President's elbow are looking glum. Their worry is due to the haste with which recent legislation has been slapped together and the danger of a Supreme Court veto.

The Court's objection to the hot oil law was that Congress did not lay down basic specifications for guiding the President. It gave him a blank check. This also may be the Court's objection in the gold cases, namely that Congress must delegate its powers specifically, not in blanket fashion.

The "new relief" bill has the same flaw. It is the greatest blanket bill ever placed before Congress.

BIG NEWS

FOUR STARS IN FILM FEATURE BANK NIGHT

Appearing before the House Banking Committee on behalf of the Administration's bill extending the life of the RFC for another two years, Jesse was subjected to some barbed interrogation by Massachusetts Republican Representative Charles L. Gifford.

Gifford was particularly critical of what he described as the RFC's failure to save the textile industry.

"It seems to me," he remarked acidly, "that the RFC has a glass-eye sympathy—so typical of bankers in general—toward the problems of the textile industry."

Jesse's smile dropped like a plummet and he sat up stiffly in his chair.

"That's ridiculous," he snapped back. "Ours is a very real sympathy. If you will see to it that the law is changed so that we can do something for the industry our glass eye will cease shedding crocodile tears."

Another item of food is being added to the growing list for which the housewife will have to pay more. This time it is rice.

Because Louisiana millers balked at voluntary reduction, the rice industry this year will be subjected to a processing tax.

The decision came after an internal row among rice growers, the Californians wanting voluntary restriction through marketing agreements.

However, the marketing agreement did not work in Louisiana. In that State, holders of farm mortgages—and most of the land is mortgaged—wanted production kept high to insure returns. Canal companies, which control irrigation and also own land, were more interested in acreage than in crop reduction.

As a result there was a 100 per cent increase in "huller" mills. They sold rice to the local trade at less than the price established by the marketing agreement.

The result was a general breakdown of the system, a lot of soreness on the part of California rice growers and the present plan of a processing tax.

FOREIGN CONGRESSMEN
There are ten foreign-born Congressmen in the 74th Congress:

One—Englishman, George Burnham, Republican of California.
Two Germans: Leonard W. Schuetz, Democrat of Illinois, and Bernhard M. Jacobsen, Democrat of Iowa.

One Austrian: Karl Stefan, Republican of Nebraska.
One Dane: Charles G. Binderup, Democrat of Nebraska.

One—Swede: Pehr G. Holmer, Republican of Massachusetts.
Two Italians: Vincent Palmisano, Democrat of Maryland, and Peter A. Cavichia, Republican of New Jersey.

One Irishman: Michael J. Stack, Democrat of Pennsylvania; one Scotsman, Robert Crosser, Democrat of Ohio.

"Lady by Choice" with four stars, Carole Lombard, May Robson, Roger Pryor and Walter Connolly, comes to the Fox theater today to be the main screen attraction for this week's Bank Night.

"Lady by Choice" tells the tale of a fan dancer, who, as a publicity stunt, adopts a moll. The "moll" is a delinquent police fire quencher, who has been arrested so many times that even the sentencing judge considers her an old friend.

In the script, Carole Lombard's personality and capabilities were so clearly indicated that the part seemed especially written with the star in mind. For the role of the delinquent hound, reminiscent of her great characterization in "Lady for a Day" May Robson appeared not only the obvious but the only choice.

By a stroke of good luck both stars were under Columbia contract and the result of course, is that they were co-featured in the film play.

Selected short subject complete the program.

Two Features Tomorrow
Bing Crosby and Kitty Carlisle in "Here is My Heart" feature hit of 1935 and said to be Bing's best picture, comes to the Fox theater tomorrow at the head of a double program. "The Human Side" with Adolph Menjou, Doris Kenyon, Reginald Owen, Charlotte Henry and Little Dickie Moore is the companion feature on tomorrow's program.

signs of envy from women everywhere when she was a reeking fire on the New York stage evoked the same exclamations at a local playhouse where she is now appearing in "Her Master's Voice."

Of her part in the play, Miss Burke says "It's the role of a fluff heroine that one feels should be shot on sight."

Laughingly she denied she was the busiest person in a busy community, although she admitted she was handling a raising a 17-year old daughter, Patricia.

Enumerating her activities, she disclosed that she is working on the story and casting of "The Great Ziegfeld," the life of her late husband, Florenz Ziegfeld; she is playing a leading role in "Becky Sharp" at one of the major studios; and she is aiding with the technical side of "Ziegfeld Follies" which the Shuberts are presenting as well as appearing in her stage part.

The motion picture of Ziegfeld's life, she feels, will be a great monument to her husband's memory and the choice of William Anthony McGuire as director is to her an ideal selection for he was closer to Ziegfeld than any other man Miss Burke believes.

Familiar with the technical aspects of stage productions, she is keenly interested in the filming of "Becky Sharp" which is being made entirely in technicolor. Motion picture audiences, having seen her only in black-and-white, will hardly recognize her in this picture for the coloring of her eyes and hair and her fair complexion are not done justice in most pictures.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—We've found the most extravagant lady in town. There are plenty of wealthy women in New York, of course, who undoubtedly spend more money each year than this particular one, but most of them are lacking in imagination and confine themselves to conventional items like fur coats and limousines.

Our lady, however, is a real poetess of lavishness. Her father left her, among other things, a ten-story building on 57th Street which is used as a private hospital. The lady decided to fit out an apartment for herself on the topmost story, and she thereupon built into it a $25,000 bathroom.

The chief item for expense was the tub, which was built of genuine Italian marble. A piece weighing about three tons was imported from Italy especially for this purpose, and the tub was carved from it according to her own specifications. When it came to installing the marble into her apartment, it was found that the elevators in the building would not support the load.

This by no means stopped the determined owner. She spent $1,000 to reinforce the steel cables so that the weight could be lifted. Another $1,000 was spent to reinforce the floor of the bathroom so that the heads of the occupants below. The rest of the $25,000 went for special mosaic designs in the tiles lining the walls of the room.

Yet I think, finally, that having gone to such expense, the lady would make good use of the room. Actually, she lives in New York just one month each year!

Tact Third Degree
The legend was standing slumped at the bottom of the stairs of the 59th Street subway entrance as I hurried toward the turnstile. An abject wreck of humanity, dressed in filthy tatters, leaning on a crutch, he stared forward on a ghastly, unsmiling face. He seemed to have been struck by lightning.

I had already passed through the turnstile when I noticed him, and I felt a tug of remorse at my heart for having failed to drop him a coin. He seemed so wretchedly abandoned to his miserable condition.

his face more closely, and suddenly caught my breath.

That filthy crime—could it be paint, or oil of some kind? I remembered some of the old tricks professional beggars used, their elaborate make-up, their studied pose, their secret bankrolls.

At that moment my train rumbled into the station, but something held me to my post. I let the train pass, still holding the beggar under my observation. Neither of us made a move, neither said a word. My eyes remained glued upon him, and at last the gleaming whites flashed at me again, this time with a distinctly apprehensive expression on the face.

A moment later he suddenly straightened up. Turning sharply, the abject wreck of humanity ran nimbly up the stairs and was gone.

Patricia Burke, an American girl stranded in Rome, goes to the village of Marvella to apply for the job of governess to the Countess Dei Sari's little boy. She meets a young American, Dick Waters, who tells her that Count Dei Sari and his son by a previous marriage, Sergio, are in a "dirty work." Meanwhile, the Count has hinted to her that the Countess is mentally unbalanced. He engages Pat as governess, and shortly afterward receives a secret note from Dick asking if there is a "prisoner" in the Dei Sari castle. That evening, on her way up the dark stairway to her room, some one suddenly seizes her. It is the Countess.

CHAPTER XXIV
"Listen to me," whispered the Countess, as she held Pat there in the darkness. "I know you're afraid of me. I saw it from the first. You believed them when they told you I was crazy. You've tried to avoid me. This was the only way I could get you to listen to me."

"If you would let go of me," Pat answered quietly, beginning to feel calmer. "I could listen more comfortably."

Almost immediately her arms were freed, and she drew a breath of relief.

"They are trying to kill me," said the Countess. "You must help me!"

There was still such a note of hysteria in her voice that Pat couldn't tell whether she was listening to the desperate plea of a desperate woman, or to the ravings of a lunatic. She knew that the persecution mania was a common enough form of madness.

"I'll do anything I can," she said eagerly.

"If I could only be sure that you are not in league with them against me!"

"I'm not in league with anyone against you," Pat answered quietly. But now that she felt in no immediate danger from the Countess, she was nervous for fear upstairs and find them here together.

"Then you will help me?" "Yes, yes, if I can," Pat said hurriedly.

The woman's voice grew quieter. "You must send another letter for me, although—" She sighed heavily. "I'm afraid my friends won't believe me, either, nor help would have come before now."

"Believe me," Pat whispered quickly. "you are being helped."

"Thank heaven!" the Countess' voice broke. "But if help doesn't come soon, I'll be dead."

"No, no," said Pat. "But you must go back to your room now. You must! It's too dangerous to stay here. If I'm caught here with you, I can never help you."

"Yes—that's true. But they try to keep me from seeing you. I must find a way—a way—a way."

Silently, like a ghost, she left Pat, only a faint perfume lingering in the air as proof that she had been there.

PAT hastily mounted the remaining steps to her room, locked herself in, and flung herself on the bed. So much had happened in the last few hours that she was emotionally exhausted. She was so tired that she felt that her fear of pleasure could never be muted. Then, lighting a sudden knock on her door, however, proved to her that this was a fallacy and that, far from being too exhausted for any sort of reaction, her nerves were strung like fine wires. She sat up with a feeling that her heart was literally in her mouth. It took her a moment to make sure that no one was spying on her, she ran to the gate. At first, she thought that it was stuck, and pushed it energetically. Then, with a sick feeling, she understood.

The gate was locked!

ANNIVERSARY OF LOCAL PAIR TO BE OBSERVED

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Healy, well known local couple, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary at an open house at their home, 163 Thirteenth street today.

Many friends are expected to call. All six of the couple's children, and 13 grandchildren are alive and not only that, all but two of the children reside in Richmond.

Of the children living here, two reside at home, Jack Healy, a Certain-teed employee; and Miss Nora Healy, a nurse at Sunshine Camp. The other two Richmond children, James, Jr., and Joseph, are married and are Standard Oil employees. Daniel Healy of Antioch is connected with the Standard Oil company at Antioch and the sixth child is Mrs. Julia McBryde of Oakland.

The only other close surviving relative of either Mr. or Mrs. Healy is a sister of the latter, Mrs. J. E. Mahoney of Fruitvale, who incidentally was the bridesmaid at the couple's wedding. Another guest will be William Duddy of Oakland, who was best man at the wedding.

The Healys were born on neighboring farms in County Cork, Ireland. Healy 79 years ago and his wife 75 years ago. As children they both attended the same country school in Ireland.

After leaving school, Mrs. Healy, who as a young girl was Julia O'Connell, migrated to America, with a sister, and the two lived in Boston for three years, after which Julia came to Oakland to reside with other relatives. In the meantime she and Healy had lost track of one another.

Their great was their surprise when they met in Oakland by chance, and discovered that Healy had arrived in Oakland just a week ahead of Miss O'Connell, having come to California direct from Ireland as a young man of 22 years.

From then on, the romances ripened, and their marriage followed in old St. Mary's Catholic church, Oakland on January 29, 1885, with Father King officiating.

For several years the couple resided in Oakland, Alameda and Byron, coming to Richmond 13 years ago to be near their children. Healy spent 35 years in the employ of the Standard Oil company retiring in 1918. Nineteen years of his faithful service was with the old Pacific Coast Oil company in their West Alameda refinery, which was later taken over by the Standard Oil company. The remainder of the time was spent on the Valley Pipe Line of the Standard, mostly in the vicinity of Byron Hot Springs.

Those gathered for the occasion, beside the honorees, were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Peters, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Shubert, Mrs. Florence Shubert, Bert Healy, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Thurbon and children, Jack, Ella and Robert; Mr. and Mrs. Peter McLaughlin and children, Richard and Margaret; Mrs. Anna Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Waddingham, Miss Frieda McGregory and Robert Peters.

The couple received many useful gifts. The Peters were married in Lethbridge, Alberta, on January 23, 1910, and have resided in Richmond ever since. Peters is a Certain-teed company employee.

Miller To Ask Grand Jury For "Trusty" Policy

MARTINEZ, Jan. 28.—Flight and recapture of V. L. Smith, 30, of Pittsburg, a trusty at the county jail, was followed today by Sheriff John A. Miller announcing that he intends to ask the William Lewis grand jury for an expression of policy upon employment of prisoners on premises removed from the jail.

Smith fled Saturday night while employed with other trusties at Memorial hall here but was captured yesterday at Pittsburg by Deputy Sheriff Sal Jimack and returned to jail. Miller said he will confer with the district attorney upon filing of an escape charge against Smith.

Such work is continued with prisoners the risk of escape is always imminent, Miller said. The office has not sufficient men to permit of a guard being sent with every prisoner on the many details for which requests are received. I propose to ask the grand jury, which is considered as a representative public body, to consider the policy involved and advise with me upon it. If there is public expectation of continuance of such work by prisoners there must be expectation of escapes.

Smith was serving a sentence of 90 days on a misdemeanor charge and had entered the jail January 11.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By C. N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

The Use of the Pulse to Determine a Patient's Condition — Why Doctors Thump Fingers

WHEN the doctor visits your sick bed and has heard your story—one of the first things he does is to place his fingers on your wrist on the thumb side.

DR. CHRISMAN

What does he do it for? The pulse tells him many things. Each time the heart beats or contracts it sends a wave of blood through all the system and it can be felt as it rushes through the arteries. It tells how fast the heart is beating, how hard it beats, and with what volume.

Up until a few years ago, that was our only method of determining the blood pressure and many physicians were skilful enough to determine it very accurately. He feels how regular it is, whether it compresses easily or resists pressure, and this tells him whether arterio-sclerosis is present or not. Does the pulse skip a beat occasionally, meaning that the nerve control of the heart is irregular.

MANY things are to be learned by a trained doctor by simply studying the pulse. Then we use what we call palpation. We bare the chest and back with the fingers of one hand spread over an area, we tap lightly on the separated fingers. In this way we can outline the heart, telling its size, shape, and position.

We locate the position of the apex beat or the point near the nipple that you feel the heart beat strike. This position tells us if the heart is larger on one side than the other.

We take over the lung area to find spots of dullness, disclosing cavities caused by tuberculosis, consolidation of pneumonia, or fluid pus in pleurisy. The same procedure is gone over in the abdomen, showing areas of dullness or tympanitis. This process shows how much gas is present and its location. Points of tenderness, collections of pus, fluid or obstruction will be found.

The size and extent of the liver, spleen, stomach, and kidneys all form variations of sound and resistance to pressure. Maybe these sounds confirm what we learned by listening through the stethoscope, as we told you yesterday. Maybe they do not, but if not, they mean something to us. The sense of touch in the finger tips is supposed to be the most informative of all our senses. A physician's finger tips are not only sensitive, but trained.

THROUGH them, we detect more things about congestions, circulation, location of pain, and disease, nerve strain or tension, than we could explain ourselves. Indeed, they are as invaluable to our equipment as our eyes and ears.

Answer to R. C. of Texas: No, the white spots in the crypts of the tonsils are not food, but bits of secretion from the gland itself. Sometimes they get quite hard. They are not injurious in themselves, but they provide hiding places for infection. The fact that they are larger and more numerous when you are in a low state of health is related to the general relaxed condition of the tissues.

H. E. K. of California: The intestinal adhesions of which you complain are probably the result of some septic trouble following an operation, or from repeated attacks of inflammation in the intestinal area. I hesitate to suggest further surgery. It requires the most exquisite skill and precaution to be successful. Massage sometimes helps in keeping the bowels flexible. X-ray treatments promote absorption of adhesions in some cases and are worth trying. Thorough elimination is very necessary.

Guide to Charm

SOUND SLEEP IS AN IMPORTANT AID TO BEAUTY

By JACQUELINE HUNT

IF YOU go to sleep effortlessly and sleep soundly you are probably a fresh-skinned, good-looking woman. For sleep is one of the most effective beauty measures you can take. It irons out the lines, fills out hollows, and makes your eyes sparkle.

Physiologically you need sound, refreshing slumber if you are to keep up with the many activities that winter brings without damaging your health. But how to get your sleep is another matter. There seems to be no such thing as "sleep insurance." Sometimes when you are not at all tired and have interesting things to be done, you simply can't hold your eyes open. Again when you are wearied and in need of sleep it is most elusive.

However, there are certain conditions that make sound sleep possible, and there are certain tricks that will sometimes work.

The most important sleep inducer is a well ventilated room. Stuffy air causes restlessness and a disturbed slumber. Sometimes even head-aches and nervousness.

Your bed should be a comfortable one with firm springs, a well-padded mattress, smooth sheets, and warm but light covers. You will find that having the room entirely dark will rest the eyes, soothe the nerves, and induce sound slumber.

A moderate amount of physical tiredness is an aid to sound sleep, but mental tiredness with its resulting taut nerves prevents sleep. One solution, then, is to bring about an artificial muscular tiredness and release tense nerves by exercise. These relaxing exercises must be slow, rhythmic and simple. Complicated motions would increase your nervous tension and drive sleep even further away.

To begin with, prepare yourself for bed, windows open, everything in order. Now relax as completely as you can. The first is simply stretching, starting with the arms and stretching the whole body as long as possible.

Now twist and turn by first raising the right hip with the shoulders still lying flat and then twist the left hip. The next step is to raise and twist first one shoulder and then the other with the hips firmly planted in place. Follow the exercises with a short rest and then repeat them about five times, resting between each set of movements.

If you do not feel relaxed by this time, hold a relaxed position, lying on your back and raise first one arm and then the other and let them drop lazily. Repeat until the neck, arms and shoulders are completely free of tension.

Igor Stravinsky Visits America for the Second Time, and Finds Himself No Longer a Museum Piece

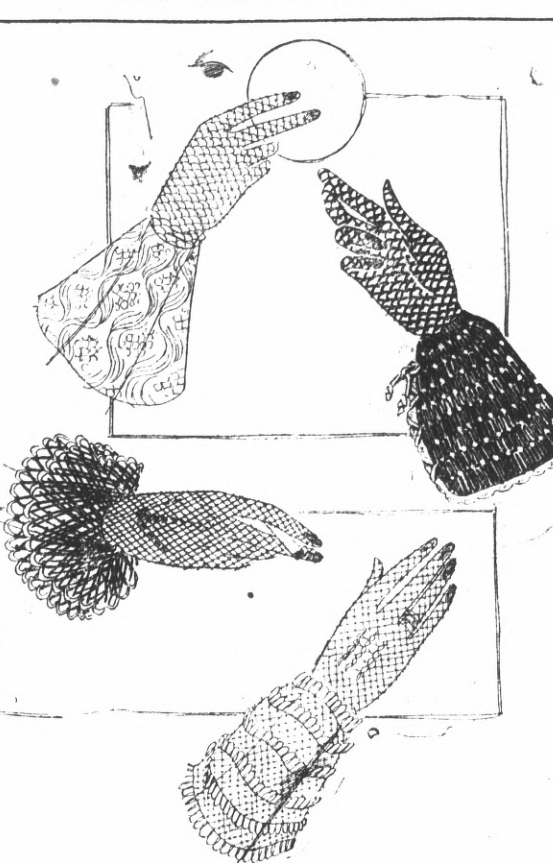

ABOUT nine years ago artistically-minded citizens in the major cities of the United States flocked to see Igor Stravinsky, Franco-Russian modern composer, who was paying his first visit to America, as if they were witnessing a freak such as even Barnum never presented. Now Stravinsky is here again, but this time he is being feted by an understanding public, and no longer is his music puzzling to students. He is familiar to Americans at last—no longer a legendary figure.

Stravinsky is in his fifties, but during his comparatively short span he connects up a nineteenth century composer like Rimsky-Korsakoff to the most "ultra" of the modernists. He was born in 1882 at Oranienbaum, Russia, a suburb of St. Petersburg. His father was a celebrated basso at the Imperial Theater, and on both sides the families were landed gentry.

Igor, until seventeen, got poor marks in everything but music. He was facile on the piano. At

New Yorkers Cling to Black for Evening But Sometimes Take a Fling At All-Red

DAINTINESS IN GLOVES

Copyright, 1935, by Patrolchild.

By IRENE VAIL

New York—There is a certain type of woman—the sophisticated New Yorker being one—who holds staunchly to the belief that an evening dress worthy of the name should be either all-black or all-white. Occasionally, just to prove that she's broad-minded in such matters, she unbends, and when she does she goes uncompromisingly red. I am talking about the younger sophisticate, for the old guard likes sapphire blue and so on.

The woman who is limited as to evening clothes should sternly adhere to the policy of black for her first gown. If she may have others they may be colored or white. Oh, it needn't be somber, not with all the scintillating trimmings there are or the fluffy, feathery, and billowy decorations which are the very essence of frivolity. Some of the nets with appliques of taffeta, or what not, are simply devastating.

The glove at the upper left, is in white cotton mesh in a shell-like stitch, with a cuff flaring out in dashing fashion, done of starched linen. At the right of it, is a navy cotton crocheted rather open of stitch, with a wide cuff in navy with white dots and white border.

The lower of the gloves at the left, is in black linen mesh in a diamond type of stitch with a double starched cuff of coarse mesh finished with a white scalloped edge. Below it, a long sleeve of string color cotton mesh is six or seven loops forming a decoration up the arm.

At right of the column the dress is made of matalasse crepe, with contrasting collar and cuffs, which being detachable, may be changed to something in a more dressy. Separate collar and cuff sets are definitely back in vogue.

You and Your Child

MOTHER SHOULD WARN CHILD AS SHE LEAVES HIM

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

TRY to put yourself in the place of a young child busy at play and humming with satisfaction. Outside the curtained windows the world looms large and mysterious. But in here, in this room and in this house it is cozy and bright. In the next room or somewhere conveniently near, within calling distance at any rate, is mother. She knows everything, when it is mealtime and just how he likes his cereal, eggs and spinach. She knows when it is bedtime and how to tuck a fellow in bed and with soft spoken words how to allay his fear of the dark. In short she is a source of great comfort to him and indispensable to his well being.

As such a fellow, then, and aware possibly at the time of the presence of a neighbor in the house or grandmother or daddy, noticed suddenly that your mother was not at home. What do you suppose you would do? You would call for her, wouldn't you? And when the neighbor or grandmother or daddy tried to soothe you, you would call the louder. "Scream," more suitably would describe the quality of your voice at this time. For you would be in a state of panic. "Don't cry. Your mother will be right back," words spoken quietly at first and then with rising indignation, are lies as far as you are concerned. You demand, "Where is she?" and are assured that your mother went to the store or the dentist. You continue to bawl to high heaven, "I want my mother." For when you call for your mother and she does not answer or come then you know the meaning of despair. For words have lost their meaning, and nothing matters any more. You think your mother is never coming back.

A mother should not slip away without telling the child that she is going, as this may build up in him a fear that she may not return. If a parent has to go out alone, she should let the child see her in her hat and coat. Her "good bye" should be casual, a pat on the head or a wave of the hand. And she should leave by the front door. Why arouse suspicion? Should he cry, don't linger to soothe him. That's precisely what he wants. After all, you have explained that you are coming back and you know that he will be cared for during your absence. There is no cause for tears. Your actions should make this plain.

Short Cuts

Here is a winter fruit salad worth a trial. Peel six large oranges, removing skin and membrane down to juicy pulp. Cut in slices. Arrange circles of these slices on individual lettuce-covered salad plates. Marinate one-third cup each of banana and apple with orange juice saved in preparing orange slices. This prevents discoloration. Combine these fruits with one-third cup raisins and one-quarter cup mayonnaise. Place a mound of this mixture in center of orange slices. Top each mound with additional mayonnaise and three raisins.

Baked Dinners Do Not Take Time Many Housewives Think

By JUDITH WILSON

SOMETIMES wonder why women do not serve baked dinners oftener. Nothing is quite so appealing, when appetites need catering to, as they are now at this season. A few of you say that you cannot regulate your ovens with sufficient accuracy, so the baked meal takes too much of your time and attention.

With some menus this is true, but there are any number of tempting baked dishes that require only half an hour in the oven and you must give the much time to the preparation of any kind of meal. Today's recipes for approximately a half hour's baking and with the exception of the crusty tongue, little attention is required beforehand.

Roast Beef Pie
Peel and slice two onions and pour over them two cups boiling beef broth. Set aside while you trim and dice enough cooked roast beef to make three cups and scrape and slice six small carrots and two potatoes. Sprinkle with one teaspoon salt, add to the onions and broth and put into a one and one-half quart casserole. Make biscuits for the top from two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons shortening and about two-thirds cup milk. Pat the dough thin and cut into small biscuits. Arrange these on top of the meat mixture in the casserole and bake for half an hour in a moderately hot oven.

Caramel Apples
Wash and halve five baking apples and arrange in a flat baking dish. Cream one-half cup butter and blend with one cup brown sugar that has been mixed with one-half cup flour and one-fourth teaspoon salt. One cup brown nut meats to the creamed mixture, spread over the apples and bake for half an hour in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.). Serve hot with cream.

Crusted Tongue
Get a smoked tongue, scrub and place in cold water. Bring to the boiling point and simmer gently for one and one-half to two hours or until tender. Remove the skin and cut off the uneven end. Make a paste from two slightly beaten eggs and one and one-half cups bread crumbs and spread these over the tongue. Place in a baking dish and bake for one-half hour in a moderate oven. Baste every ten minutes with one cup port wine. Remove to a hot platter and garnish with potato balls dressed with melted butter and chopped parsley.

Make a sauce by sauteing a small chopped onion, and two stalks finely chopped celery in two tablespoons butter. Add a small can of tomato paste and the wine and drippings from the roasting pan. Season with a pinch of thyme, and salt and pepper.

Individual Minicream Pies

Lined muffin tins with thinly rolled rich pastry. Open a package of dry minicream, add one and one-half cups hot water and three tablespoons sugar. Boil briskly for one minute and cool slightly. Fill the muffin tins to a third of an inch from the top, then cut rounds of pastry slightly larger than the muffin cups. Lay the rounds of pastry over the filled pies and crimp firmly around the edges with a fork. Prick or slash the top crusts to allow the steam to escape. Bake in a hot oven for about twenty minutes. These are delicious served warm with small cubes of American store cheese.

Waffles are excellent for serving with chilled beef, minced ham, creamed eggs, chicken.

Scatter nuts will not crumble when a carpet sweeper or vacuum cleaner is used on them, if cleaned crosswise.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "Recently I went out with a young man. We went to the theater and supper, and on the way home he tried to kiss me and made other unbecoming advances. He has called up to apologize and I told him that I do not accept his apology. Since then it has occurred to me that the situation might have been handled somewhat more tactfully. Can you suggest how?"

ANSWER: When anyone apologizes it is rude to reject the apology. You could have said, "I accept your apology. Let's forget the unpleasant incident. But I think that I don't care to go out with you again. I'm sorry. Good bye." And then hung up the receiver.

QUESTION: "A very dear friend has told me of her wedding plans. Both my husband and myself know the groom-to-be well. As soon as we heard the news we went out and bought them a handsome wedding gift. Would it be in order to send the gift along to the bride now, before the wedding invitation has been received?"

ANSWER: Quite. Such close friends as you seem to be do not have to wait for an invitation before sending a present to a bride.

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN MATS MARTIN

Despite Increase of Educated Women, Men Still Have Habit of Falling For Dumb Doras

TAKE it or leave it, there is every evidence to believe men do not count brains as a feminine asset. If you think the world has outgrown its prejudice against the brainy woman, you are mistaken. And statistics prove it by showing that college-bred women make the grade to the altar with greater difficulty, and in smaller numbers, than the other kind. Everyone who has given the matter much thought has a particular theory on it. But summed up in a nutshell, all more or less agree that men still want to be cock of the roost and so painstakingly avoid the women who know more than they do.

It has been pointed out that this must be the reason, since college girls are good looking and smartly dressed and frequently extremely entertaining. They have all the social assets plus, and since there is nothing in a college course that mitigates against feminine lure, it must be that men still refuse to take any chances of having their wives know more, or even as much as they.

Curiously enough, college men seem to shy off from college girls—at least so old friend "Statistics" affirms. It naturally does not follow that a girl is a Dumb Dora just because she hasn't a sheepskin to her name, or a string of letters after it. And it likewise does not follow that she knows her way around when equipped with these testimonials to her mental capabilities.

THERE are plenty of college girls who know little else than what they learn from books and who are curiously inept at solving the simplest of life's problems. In spite of the number of brainy men who have been driven literally to drink and desperation by a day-in-and-day-out association with stupid wives, their example counts for naught with those men who approach marriage by emotional by-paths and view it only through rose-colored glasses.

Long evenings can be very dull if one has no capacity for conversation of a sort that rises above banalities. The reason why marriage is often an endurance test is just because of this lack of companionship or of anything approximating mental equality. A married pair that rises to similar mental processes in order to pull together toward a goal. Unless they are capable of seeing each other's viewpoint, even though they may not agree with it, how can they hope to get anywhere? The better trained brain, or the better brain-trained or otherwise—makes some attempt to understand a viewpoint other than its own. It's only the stupid man or woman who can not be made to see any other point of view. And this ability to see the other viewpoint, or even to admit that there is one, helps tremendously in final acceptance of a helpmate's mentality.

IT IS far easier to convince, or even control, a clever person than it is a stupid one. Clever wives usually make their husbands so comfortable that they lose sight of the fact that they may not be happy. What adult-thinking adult can be blissfully happy—for long? The best we can hope for is great contentment and satisfaction with our lot.

Stupid women get off on the wrong foot and make things so uncomfortable for others, and of course for themselves, that they are a menace to anything that resembles success in whatever they undertake. Marriage is no exception.

It would seem that a really intelligent man would be wary in the fact that he had a wife whose mental processes supplied what was lacking in his. Men select partners in every other association save marriage, because they contribute something to the venture. When it comes to the most important partnership in life, however, they let their judgment be overridden by the sort of emotional appeal that is a very poor substitute for mental compatibility.

And perhaps the saddest phase of it all is that most men have a half-baked notion that the brainless woman makes the most dependable wife, when in reality it's usually the stupid woman who makes a mess of marriage.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sore and sick and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and happy and full of sunshine.
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a quick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.
It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.
That don't talk for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Refuse a substitute. See at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

HAUPTMANN SHOUTS LIAR AT ATTORNEY

IT WORKED

It worked today—as it usually does, and in mid-afternoon Wilentz had rasped and goaded Hauptmann to the point where the prisoner had retreated from his cheeks and he was half out of the witness chair, snarling and screaming as only a man can when he knows he is going to live or die by what he says and does.

Crazy things began to happen in the courtroom. A woman fainted, perspiration dripping to her chin, but she was so tightly packed into the throng that stood against the wall that it was impossible for her to fall. Nobody paid any attention to her. A girl in a blue beret, face and ears strained to catch every word, began to hum "The Carols" as if this were some dance up the Pike at Princeton University.

WILD SCENE

At 4:30 P. M. the spectators went pushing and shoving out of the courtroom, still afire with excitement. Tomorrow they will be in line early, for Wilentz has more barbed questions to ask Hauptmann and it is possible that cross examination may take another full day.

"It all depends on how Hauptmann behaves," Wilentz said after court adjourned.

Outside of this red, raw drama, what happened today in what is called here "this issue joined between the State of New Jersey and Bruno Richard Hauptmann" are several important things—things that weigh heavier than a clash between a dark man and a light one.

STORY TOLD

Wilentz got these admissions out of Hauptmann today:

That the defendant hid money from his wife even though she was working in a bakery to help support the family.

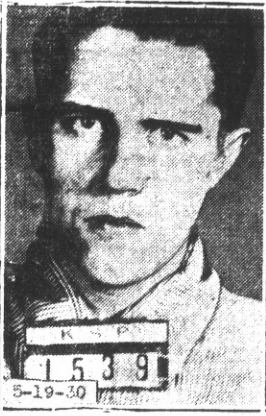

That notes in a book of Hauptmann's, containing the word "head" misspelled as "head," were written in 1931 and not eight years ago, as Hauptmann testified Friday.

The ransom notes also used the spelling "head" for "head."

LOW FINANCE

That Hauptmann's finances were at such a low ebb just before the Lindbergh kidnaping that the defendant could not raise $74 with which to margin his brokerage account.

Blast Their Way Out

Fines And Jail, Traffic Policy Of Judge Grover

lated "and now realize that impositions of the law are certain to bring serious penalties in their wake. As a result they know this is bad territory for speeders, drunk drivers and reckless drivers and therefore have ceased to burn up the highways in the old-fashioned manner, realizing that alert traffic officers will not only present them with one of those 'blue tickets' and their appearance before the judge is almost certain to result in the imposition of a heavy fine, a jail term or the loss of their driving license."

"I have some fifteen operators' licenses now in my office," said the judge, "taken from those who cannot afford to pay a fine, yet who persist in violating the traffic laws. As for the reckless and drunken drivers who are concerned, they need not expect any mercy in my court. I have a reputation for being lenient, but now I am warning that henceforth offenders will find that leniency is a thing of the past."

SPOTLIGHT CO-OPERATE

Judge Grover urged that having been conspicuously proved that the accident rate can be materially cut down through strict enforcement.

It is the duty of all judges of the peace in this county to cooperate with officers to the fullest extent and substitute stiff fines and jail penalties hereafter for lectures and leniency.

SERVICES ARE HELD

Last rites were held yesterday afternoon in Martinez for Mrs. Sarah Overfield, pioneer county resident who died in Berkeley Friday. She was the mother of Mrs. T. E. Taylor of Richmond.

count. That Hauptmann has trouble spelling the words "right" and "light." In one of his own diaries they are spelled "right" and "light." That is the way they were spelled in the ransom notes.

INSPECTIONS MADE

In the sanitary inspector's report 1339 food stores were inspected; 603 yards and homes were inspected; 456 inspections were made at the garbage dump and city pound; 1212 inspections were made of business places and 1732 miscellaneous inspections were reported, making a total of 5218 inspections for the year.

In the city laboratory report, 3,588 cultures were examined and analyses made. Of this number 1,256 were for analyses of milk; 310 for ice cream analyses; 272 analyses of water were made and 1,163 tests were made for the Health Center.

The veterinarian's report showed that many inspections were made of dairies, meat markets, milking herds and of meats.

Fees collected by the department during the year totaled $5,925.02 and of this sum, $3,688.72 were collected for milk inspection fees.

Warning Against Eating Castor Beans Ignored

MARTINEZ, Jan. 28.—(Herald Staff Writer.)—A warning against eating castor beans, which is a common household item, was ignored by a young boy, who died of the effects of the poison.

The boy, who was about 10 years old, was found dead in his bed this morning. His mother, who is a widow, said that she had warned him not to eat the beans, but that he had ignored her warning.

Then, according to the story told by the mother, the boy had been playing with the beans and had eaten one of them. She said that she had found him dead in his bed this morning.

He was taken to an Alameda hospital and after suffering for several days died.

NO FREDGAL

For the pedagogue of history and the name of a Birmingham, Alabama woman who lost $1,600 of her savings certificates will not be found numbered among them. After two days of tedious searching the man who picked up the valuable papers finally discovered the owner. Was she grateful? I'll say so.

"You," she said, "deserve a reward."

As a reward, beamed the finder, holding out his palm.

The fortunate owner laughed in her purse and deposited a half dollar in the outstretched hand.

was discovered at 11:08 P. M. by a grocer, Martin Mason.

HAD KEY

Police said that Alcalde was believed to have a key to Miss Robinson's apartment. For this reason they questioned his motive in having Mrs. Grehaut admit him to the place.

It also was pointed out that Alcalde was unable to produce witnesses substantiating his story that he spent an hour and a half, between 7:30 P. M. and 9 P. M. Saturday night walking about San Bruno, his home. Investigators revealed today that Miss Robinson apparently was shot to death before 9 P. M.
